

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A color printing apparatus having pulse-width modulation means which performs pulse-width modulation for tone control, and a control method thereof
5 are provided. Based on determination of a printing mode of printing data supplied and determination of whether or not the printing data is to be processed as single-color data, a pulse-width modulation pattern to be used by the pulse-width modulation means is decided.